

According to Menzel, is globalization a positive or negative force in society? What evidence from texts supports the validity of his claim?

08:21PM Sun, 01 December 2013 GMT by Mrs. G

Menzel utilized the pictures to highlight the diversity of cultures, and help the reader to infer the socioeconomic standing of each family.

05:38PM Mon, 09 December 2013 GMT by

Globalization is a negative force in society, spreading unhealthy foods and lifestyles to countries that cannot afford to live in such a way

06:03PM Mon, 09 December 2013 GMT by

According to menzel globalization is a negative force in society because it spread the unhealthy and neg. parts of pop culture

06:03PM Mon, 09 December 2013 GMT by

Menzel illustrates that globalization is a positive impact, as it allows for families to purchase sanitary food items and provides easier

06:04PM Mon, 09 December 2013 GMT by

Menzel says that globalization can be positive if the family adopts it with open arms. For example the family in India used it and is fine

06:04PM Mon, 09 December 2013 GMT by [REDACTED]

Menzel is highlighting the benefits (it can be positive), but he specifically omits certain negatives that would contradict this theory

06:04PM Mon, 09 December 2013 GMT by [REDACTED]

According to Menzel, globalizTion has both a negative and positive positive impact. This is because globalization is what brings people...

06:04PM Mon, 09 December 2013 GMT by [REDACTED]

According to Menzel, globalization is a positive aspect as a wide range of products as well as much affluence may be gained through it.

06:04PM Mon, 09 December 2013 GMT by [REDACTED] or

Globalization is a mixture of both positive and negative impacts. It can assist in raising the economic standards, but deprive health needs.

06:04PM Mon, 09 December 2013 GMT by [REDACTED]

access to food.

06:04PM Mon, 09 December 2013 GMT by [REDACTED]

Together, but what can destroy them individually

06:04PM Mon, 09 December 2013 GMT by [REDACTED] t

For Mexico, Menzel believes that globalization is negative. The health of Mexico is declining due to globalization and is shown with the BMI

06:04PM Mon, 09 December 2013 GMT by [REDACTED]

According to his facts and depiction of his findings, it appears that globalization is a neutral force that helps and takes away

06:04PM Mon, 09 December 2013 GMT by [REDACTED]

Globalization is a positive force as it spreads ideas and brings nations together

06:05PM Mon, 09 December 2013 GMT by [REDACTED]

According to Menzel, globalization is a negative force as he depicts families with less globalized foods to be more healthy

06:05PM Mon, 09 December 2013 GMT by [REDACTED]